

Threat Detection and Insecurity Management

COURSE OVERVIEW

Due to the increasing number of expatriations to developing countries, Expatriates' safety and security have become a major concern of international mobility not only in high-risk locations of developing countries but all over the world, this intensive course addresses those concerns with strategic threat detection plan.

WHO SHOULD ATTEND?

This course is ideal for security officers, risk managers, safety and operations personnel, facility managers, intelligence analysts, law enforcement agents, emergency response teams, and corporate security staff. It is also suitable for diplomats, NGO field workers, logistics personnel, executive protection professionals, and anyone responsible for managing personal or organizational safety in high-risk or unpredictable environments.

COURSE OUTCOMES

Delegates will gain the knowledge and skills to:

- Conduct comprehensive risk mapping and threat assessments.
- Evaluate the effectiveness of existing protection measures.
- Perform vulnerability audits across physical and operational areas.
- Carry out route surveys and apply street-level security awareness.
- Implement residential security audits and recommend surveillance solutions.
- Design and apply vehicle protection strategies to enhance mobile safety.

KEY COURSE HIGHLIGHTS

At the end of the course, you will understand;

- Risk mapping and environmental threat identification.
- Assessment of current security and protection systems.
- Vulnerability auditing techniques and reporting.
- Route planning and street awareness for movement safety.
- Residential security audits and surveillance setup.
- Vehicle safety and protective measures.
- Early warning signs and threat recognition.
- Tactical response planning and mitigation strategies.
- Tools and technologies for proactive threat detection.

All our courses are dual-certificate courses. At the end of the training, the delegates will receive two certificates.

1. A GTC end-of-course certificate
2. Continuing Professional Development (CPD) Certificate of completion with earned credits awarded